Luxury Boom

March 28th, to May 7th., 2020
Opening Reception Saturday, March 28th, 2 to 5 pm

So called Luxury Housing is on the rise everywhere. Mercenary developers and underhanded obtuse politicians are conjuring up sweet deals to blight older and disadvantaged neighborhoods, while promising citizens tax breaks. They're knocking down majestic historical structures, many embellished with unique architectural design elements going back 100 years or more, and replacing them with massive behemoths of cheaply constructed, mediocre multiplexes. Built to attract young professionals, luxury housing is not cheap. However, the high rents also set a damaging (and very likely intentional) precedence, because the surrounding poorer neighborhoods, usually lacking rent control, are effected with rent hikes as a result. This forces poor and working class people to exit their towns at three times the rate than in areas without luxury housing.... and tragically this can lead to homelessness.

For this exhibition we're asking artists to submit work that relates to wealth, and poverty in connection to housing, environment, family and quality of life. Also the effects of over development, historically, environmentally, and aesthetically. As always, we encourage artists to be adventurous and all media is accepted.
